Marcus:
by Goldman Sachs®

Reward Saver – Issue 1

Permitted withdrawals

We'll allow a certain number of withdrawals in each monthly interest period before you drop to the Standard rate. We call this the number of permitted withdrawals.

In each monthly interest period, making the same as or fewer than your number of permitted withdrawals means you'll receive the Reward rate for that entire monthly interest period.

In each monthly interest period, making more than your number of permitted withdrawals means you'll receive the Standard rate for that entire monthly interest period.

Your rate will automatically return to the Reward rate from the start of the following monthly interest period.

Number of permitted withdrawals for Issue 1	0 This means any withdrawals within a monthly interest period would result in you receiving the Standard rate for that entire period.

Example:

For example, let's say you opened your account on 5 March. The first monthly interest period is the 5 March – 5 April:

- If you make 0 withdrawals between 5 March and 5 April, you would receive the Reward rate for that entire period.
- If you make 1 or more withdrawals between 6 April and 5 May, you would receive the Standard rate for that entire period.
- The rate would reset to the Reward rate from 6 May.

You can see the number of withdrawals you have made and when your monthly interest period resets online or on the app